Bio- and nanomedicine opens up fascinating new chances for medical applications by offering novel methods for drug delivery systems, imaging techniques, diagnostic tools, etc. The diversity of these topics encourages interdisciplinary expertise and connects various scientific fields. The National Technology Platform „NanoMedicine-Austria“ brings together bio- and nanomedical experts, facilitates cross-disciplinary collaboration and increases the visibility of excellent research in this area.

The “2nd NanoMedicine-Austria Day“, on 27th of February, 2018 in Graz, offers the chance to present and discuss latest developments in bio- and nanomedical research. Moreover, it gives the opportunity to exchange interesting ideas on possible applications in the coming years, in order to define future trends and the necessary framework conditions in research, education and technology transfer.
